

Volume 11, Issue 50: Lessons From 2021

One of the things we take for granted is the things we learn along the way and the lessons we learn from our mistakes. We often get bogged down by the mistakes we make and miss to pick the lessons that come from them.

Other than learning from our mistakes and other people's mistakes, we also learn a lot just from doing life, from the experiences we have, from reading, from the things we watch and listen to, and from observing other people.

Throughout the year, we learn what we like and don't like. We learn new things about ourselves. We learn what works and what doesn't work for us. We learn the good and the not so good things about ourselves.

Although we learn so much during the year, sometimes we fail to pause and reflect on the lessons and hence miss to benefit from them. As a consequence, we sometimes find ourselves making the same mistakes over and over again, just because we failed to absorb the lesson from the first time we made the mistake.

What's the biggest lesson you are taking from 2021? How are you going to apply it in the new year? Take a moment to reflect on this to better position yourself for more success in 2022.

For His Glory,

Lillian Chebosi
