Volume 12, Issue 33: Find Fulfillment in Work

There's something special about work. It's fulfilling. The days I am stretched the most and get a lot of work done are some of my best days.

I recently experienced a most frustrating day. It was a day when my laptop was acting up. But as soon as the problem was sorted the next day, I felt on fire tackling task after task, getting work done. It was a wonderful feeling.

Another day I spent a lot of time working in the kitchen, mostly cooking and baking I wasn't able to sit down for breakfast until after 1pm that day, having been in the kitchen from around 7am. Although the tasks took much more time than I had planned to spend on them, that whole time was blissful.

I enjoy working. Whether that's on my laptop crunching numbers and analyzing information, or in the kitchen cooking and cleaning or elsewhere in the house organizing laundry or cleaning or tidying up.
