A Woman is a Nurturer

Every real woman knows that although she is successful, she is first a child of God, second a woman, and third someone who needs to give something of herself to others in order to be all she was made to be. In order to live a balanced life between career and a personal life, a woman must remain true to who she is, who she was designed to be - a life giver, a nurturer. This is where deep satisfaction will always be found because every woman's spirit craves to express itself in accordance with God's design.
